Application for (Airport) Transit Visa

Dear Applicant,

thank you very much for your interest in travelling via Germany to a third country destination. This information sheet is meant to help you to determine whether you need an (Airport) Transit Visa. Besides, you will find information on the required documents for a visa application. For further information please check our homepage at www.chennai.diplo.de.

Transit Visa are issued according to the regulations of the Schengen Accord and are, therefore, valid for all Schengen Member States. The required type of Transit Visa depends on your intended duration of stay in the Schengen Area.

An Airport Transit Visa (Schengen Visa Type A) allows a short stopover in an international airport only. Neither leaving the airport's international transit area nor overnight stays in a hotel are possible.

If you need to leave the international transit area as well as the airport itself., please apply for a category C visa under transit conditions. You may spend the night in a hotel instead of the airport, fly to another city in the Schengen Area or continue your journey by train or car into neighbouring states. If you also intend to stay on business or tourist purposes, please apply according to the information sheets on business visas and tourist visas.

Besides, a Transit Visa Category C is recommended for airline staff travelling on stand-by tickets of their airline.

Indian nationals generally require an Airport Transit Visa as well as a regular Transit Visa for the Schengen Area.

There are, however, the following exemptions for Airport Transit Travellers only:

Indian nationals who are holding a visa or a residence permit for a member state of the Schengen Area (EU plus Norway, Iceland and Liechtenstein), Bulgaria, Romania, Cyprus, Ireland, UK, Canada, Japan or the USA do not need an airport transit visa.

Holders of an USA "Advance Parole Document" / I-512 are not exempted and require an Airport Transit Visa.

If you are still in doubt, whether you need an airport transit visa, please do not hesitate to contact us.
